EMPLOYMENT AREAS AND PROJECTED DEMAND:
The “Occupational Outlook Handbook” (OOH) reports that social and community service managers held about 168,800 jobs in 2018. About 29% of social and community service managers worked for individual and family services; 11% worked for social and religious organizations; 10% worked for local governments; 11% worked for nursing residential care facilities; and 9% worked for community and vocational rehabilitation services. An American Sociological Association (asanet.org) study published in 2010 shows that the largest job category for graduates with bachelor’s degrees is social service, counselor, psychologist followed by clerical and administrative support and manager.

OOH reports that the nationwide demand for sociologists is expected to grow 9% (faster than average) through 2028, with people established in their career generally earning between $46,170 and $140,430 per year. The median pay for 2018 was $82,050 per year. Most sociologist jobs require an advanced degree.
