EMPLOYMENT AREAS AND PROJECTED DEMAND:
The “Occupational Outlook Handbook” (OOH) reports that conservation scientists and foresters held about 34,600 jobs in 2016. Conservation scientist jobs are heavily concentrated in government. The higher level and administration positions often require a bachelor’s degree in parks and recreation or a similar field. Most of the individuals employed in either forestry or recreation planning are employed by federal, state or local government.

OOH reports that the nationwide demand for foresters is expected to grow as fast as average through 2026, with people established in their career generally earning between $39,100 and $82,400 per year. The median pay for 2016 was $61,810 per year.

PLACEMENT INFORMATION FOR WILDERNESS MANAGEMENT AND OUTDOOR RECREATION PLANNING GRADUATES:

Of the one graduate from Bemidji State University in 2015-2016, they reported unrelated employment and not seeking related employment.
