EMPLOYMENT AREAS AND PROJECTED DEMAND:

According to the Occupational Outlook Handbook (OOH), zoologists and wildlife biologists held about 21,000 jobs in 2019. Depending on their position, zoologists and wildlife biologists may spend considerable time in the field gathering data and studying animals in their natural habitats. Federal and state governments employed about 60% of all zoologists and wildlife biologists, excluding education, hospitals, and postal services; 9% worked in management, scientific, and technical consulting services research; 8% worked for colleges, universities, and professional schools; and 4% worked for research and development in the physical, engineering, and life sciences. Many zoologists and wildlife biologists have advanced degrees.

OOH reports the nationwide demand for marine and aquatic biologists is the same as for zoologist and wildlife biologists, projected to grow 4%, as fast as average, through 2029, with people established in their career generally earning between $38,880 and $101,780 per year. The 2019 median pay was $63,270 per year including those workers with advanced degrees.
